Going down!

A longtime Elk Point landmark was reduced to rubble last Wednesday as the former Elk Point Sales and Service was demolished. The building has stood on the corner of Main Street and Railway Avenue since the mid-1940s, and was owned and operated by the Habiak family for much of that time, selling Massey Harris and later Massey Ferguson farm implements as well as serving as the bus depot for many years.

Council, ED look at website update

By VICKI BROOKER

Review Staff

Elk Point town council met with economic development committee representative Bob Bezpalko last Monday to put the wheels in motion for an update of Elk Point's town website.

Mayor Parrish Tung said the website update "has been one of our priorities," and he was happy to see the project moving forward.

Bezpalko reported that he had met with a company out of Bonnyville who are willing to take on the project and also to update the website on an ongoing basis. He has also talked to Travel Alberta and learned that funding is available provided that a certain percentage of the website is tourism-oriented. He has now completed a draft grant proposal, ready for submission.

At least three partners are needed for the project, and Bezpalko said he hoped to have the town, the chamber of commerce and the golf club on board. Other partners, such as Fort George and Buckingham House historic site, could be linked and have their own icon on the site for quick access to information.

Bezpalko met with the EDC's marketing committee recently and got a variety of input regarding branding the community.

"There was a consensus that 'Gateway to the Lakeland' be removed," he noted. A number of suggestions were put forward for a new slogan, but no decision has been made to date.

Bezpalko said he also wants to create an investors' package which would include details on the proposed expansion of Elk Point's industrial park.

Later in the meeting council moved to include website development in their 2008 budget.

New business

Council also met with Doug Lee and Rusty Berg of Iron Horse Accessories Inc., who told council they had spoken with the other tenants in the complex where they hope to locate their business. They indicated that no concerns had been expressed regarding potential noise arising from repairs and servicing, if those are done at that location. The main focus, Lee said, is to be "primarily a retail outlet. The location would give us visibility."

Fire agreement studied

Council looked through the current fire department agreement and noted possible revisions, including a proposed hike in the fire hall space rental paid by the county, that are to be discussed at this week's fire board meeting.

Funding for library

Mayor Parrish Tung told council that the Elk Point Municipal Library would like to install a security system, and also need new computers. Council agreed to refer these requests to the Joint Operating Grant committee.

Rezoning

Council gave first reading to Bylaw 652/07, rezoning three lots on Railway Avenue.

Halloween hours set

Council agreed that Halloween trick-or-treat hours will once again be from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. on Oct. 31.

Municipal Sustainability Initiative

The large influx of money coming from the new Municipal Sustainability Initiative grant announced last week "makes it very important to plan, so we make sure the whole community benefits. It allows us to borrow for projects, and know we will be able to pay it back in a short time frame. We must use it wisely," Mayor Tung said.

"I think municipalities are very happy with this," Coun. Alvina Schuhmacher commented.

Town manager Myron Goyan suggested getting an engineering report to help in establishing priorities.

Provincials grant

Elk Point Minor Ball will receive a $2,000 grant for hosting the provincial tournament this past summer. This amount was included in the town's 2007 budget.

Industrial land

Council passed a motion to purchase additional industrial land with funding from reserves. The land is currently being surveyed, and once it is registered, the town will determine development costs before setting prices for lots.

Recycling

Coun. Dwayne Yaremkevich reported that Evergreen is finally going ahead with plans for recycling, and is applying for government funding to get the program underway.

Park upgrades in store for northeast Alberta

Provincial parks and protected areas in northeast and west-central Alberta, including Wabamun Lake, Gregoire Lake and Lakeland Provincial Parks will receive $4.1 million as part of the government's plan to address capital maintenance needs.

Funds will go towards a number of park improvements, including campground upgrades and campsite electrification at Cross Lake, Whitney Lakes and Moose Lake Provincial Parks and Franchere Bay Provincial Recreation Area as well as parking lot paving at Wabamun Lake Provincial Park. These improvements are part of a $29.2 million capital funding investment to develop Alberta's parks and protected areas and improve the park experience for visitors.

"We know from our visitor surveys that while campers enjoy Alberta's parks, they would like to see the facilities upgraded and repaired," said Hector Goudreau, minister of tourism, parks, recreation and culture. "Projects selected to receive capital funding respond to this feedback in a significant way."

These projects are part of a $350-million commitment by government to fix and maintain more than 100 schools, hospitals, post-secondary facilities and government buildings across the province.

"While it is important to build new infrastructure to meet the needs of our growing province, it is also critical that we ensure the buildings we have already are well maintained and in good working order," said Gene Zwozdesky, associate minister of capital planning. "We have been working very closely with communities and stakeholders to determine their capital maintenance needs. This funding is a big step toward addressing those needs."

Alberta's network of more than 500 parks and protected areas attract 8.5 million visits each year and contribute $1.3 billion annually to Alberta's economy.

Good response to fall Further Ed courses

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Coordinator Verona Lea Flanders told the Elk Point Further Education Council last week that she had "really good response" to her booth at Information Night on Sept. 11. "People were signing up for courses."

Between Information Night and calls resulting from the distribution of brochures in area mailboxes, Flanders says "a lot of courses are going ahead, including all of the scrapbooking. I only have two more spaces for yoga."

Flanders is currently looking for new space for the yoga class, since the original location is now the home of Elk Point's new outreach school.

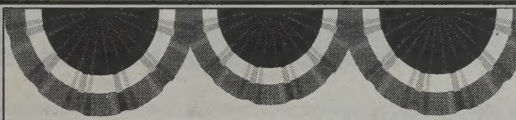

Some of the classes are done in conjunction with other facilities and agencies. For example, Registered Dietitian Linda Fox from Elk Point Healthcare Centre is offering sessions on "Surviving Supperime" and an educational grocery store tour aimed at making participants more savvy shoppers. Elk Point Municipal Library and an instructor from Northern Lights Library System, James MacDonald, will join forces with Further Ed to present a genealogy workshop.

Traditional handicrafts such as Hardanger embroidery, knitting, needle tatting and quilting are also on the fall calendar, and popular local instructor Ralph Kryvenchuk has returned to teach oil painting.

Heinsburg coordinator Marie Zayac was unable to attend last week's meeting, but will offer any of the Elk Point courses there if sufficient interest is shown, along with soapmaking and a one-night course on making a tote bag. Further Ed calendars have also been distributed in Dewberry this year, so may attract some participants from that area as well.

Flanders said she had contacted a number of other groups to inform them that funding assistance for adult courses was available, but has not received any requests to this point.

Much to be thankful for

Thanksgiving is on its way, and no doubt each of us has our own list of things for which we are thankful.

As a community, too, we have plenty to be thankful for. The past twelve months have seen a spurt of growth and new construction unlike any we have seen in decades. Lots that have been vacant, or formerly held decrepit old houses, are sprouting some of the new homes around town, and the new subdivision is quickly being filled in. We can actually now imagine that sometime in the future, the whole area west of the Peter Fidler statue will be filled with streets of new homes.

This growth seems to be expanding to the industrial area, where the town is planning to develop new lots for interested buyers.

We can be thankful for the marvelous new playground that will be officially opened on Friday, and for the new helipad to be opened the same day, which has the potential to help save many lives.

We can be thankful for the influx of new money which will permit town council to plan for new and improved infrastructure and other amenities we've needed for a long time but never could afford.

We can also be thankful that the residents of this community have a sizeable field of candidates to choose from when election day comes. It's good to have a choice.

Happy Thanksgiving, everyone!

Town council could not be swayed from their position that the former nurse's residence, newly renovated as a medical clinic, was a business operation and would be taxed accordingly. A well-attended third annual Information Night included a booth celebrating 60 years of Scouting in Elk Point.

1992

MLA John Drobot, the Hon. Ken Kowalksi, the Hon. Doug Main and board chairman Ron Young cut the ribbon to officially open the Northern Lights Library System headquarters, which would serve the 15 libraries in Alberta's newest library system. Eleven of the 16 graduates making up the 1997 graduating class at F. G. ## GUEST COLUMN

Why Thanksgiving?

Thanksgiving for all of us Canadians is next Monday. And, of course, it is a holiday weekend for some people. Thus it becomes a special thanksgiving weekend. The question now becomes, "Why do we set aside a day just for thanksgiving and why are we celebrating?"

From the history books, we learned that the first North American thanksgiving event occurred in Newfoundland in 1578. In the 1600s, Samuel de Champlain and the French settlers who came with him established an "Order of Good Cheer." This group would hold huge celebrations marking the harvests and other events, sharing their food with Native American neighbours.

The first Canadian Thanksgiving was celebrated on April 15, 1872 in thanks for the recovery of the future King Edward VII from a serious illness. The next Thanksgiving didn't occur until 1879 when it was celebrated on a Thursday in November, from 1879 to 1907 on a Thursday in October (except in 1901 and 1904 when it was celebrated on a Thursday in November) and from 1908 to 1921 on a Monday in October.

Between 1922 and 1930, the Armistice Day Act declared that Thanksgiving should be celebrated on Armistice Day, Nov. 11. In 1931, the act was amended and the old practice of Parliament declaring a day of thanksgiving each year was resumed. On Jan. 31, 1957, Parliament issued a proclamation to fix permanently the second Monday in October as "a day of general Thanksgiving to Almighty God for the bountiful harvest with which Canada has been blessed."

With the understanding of what we are celebrating on Thanksgiving Day, let me quote the first verse and refrain from a Christian hymn with the title, "We Plough the Fields and Scatter."

"We plough the fields and scatter
The good seed on the land
But it is fed and watered
By God's almighty hand.
He sends the snow in winter,
The warmth to swell the grain,
The breezes and the sunshine,
And soft, refreshing rain.
All good gifts around us
Then, thank the Lord,
O, thank the Lord,
For all his love."

Happy Thanksgiving Day, everyone, and let us remember why we are celebrating.

Vote 2007: Meet the Division 1 candidates

what the county is doing, because there is no information coming to them.

2) What are your top three priorities, if elected?

My top priorities would be to keep the people informed, to listen to their concerns and to make fair judgements that are the best for all involved, keeping the interest of the people in mind.

3) What makes you stand out above the other candidate?

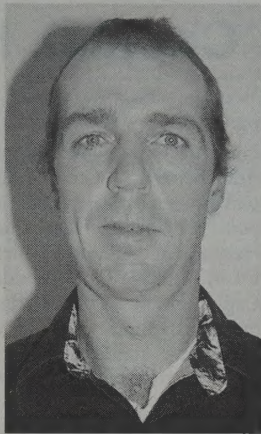

I am willing to listen to people and to be their voice in council. My slogan is to be a voice for the people. I'm not afraid to voice my opinion, and I get along well with others.

4) Who is your hero and why?

Former premier Ralph Klein. He wasn't afraid to say he didn't know all the answers, and he came right out and said what he thought. He did speak his mind.

1) What issues do you think the residents of the County of St. Paul are most concerned about?

The upkeep of roads is the biggest thing I've been hearing. Also around the lakes, people have been quadding, they've been making a lot of noise and not respecting the property of others. Residents would like to be informed about

GLEN OCKERMAN

1) What issues do you think the residents of the County of St. Paul are most concerned about?

Roads are always on people's minds, and while they have improved every year, we do have a lot of heavy industrial traffic. The industry is good for the community and all the traffic shows progress, but it puts pressure on the roads. Another concern of the agricultural community is that input costs are atrocious.

2) What are your top three priorities, if elected?

My top priority would be to ensure that roads are up to safe standards. We need to deal with growth issues, and do some planning. We also need to get something in place to help small communities stay alive. The smaller centres are very important, and they're disappearing. Places like Spring Park and Primrose used to be thriving little communities, and it's sad to see them go. I want to see them survive, because they're part of my heritage.

If the quarter section is less than 60 ha (148 ac) in size but more than 45 ha (111 ac) in size, a maximum of three single lot separations may be allowed provided that the total area of the single lot separations, including the fragmented parcel, does not exceed 6 ha (15 ac). If the quarter section is less than 45 ha (111 ac) in size but more than 30 ha (74 ac) in size, a maximum of two single lot separations may be allowed provided that the total area of the single lot separations, including the fragmented parcel, does not exceed 4 ha (10 ac). If the quarter section is less than 30 ha (74 ac) in size but more than 15 ha (37 ac) in size, a maximum of one single lot separation may be allowed provided that the area of the single lot separation does not exceed 2 ha (5 ac). If the quarter section is less than 15 ha (37 ac) in size, no single lot separation may be allowed.

2.12 If a subdivision as a result of a fragmentation for agricultural purposes has been allowed, no subdivision for country residential use shall be allowed as a result of fragmentation. However, if no subdivision as a result of a fragmentation for agricultural purposes has been allowed, one of the single lot subdivisions indicated in Section 2.11 above may be approved as a fragmentation may be allowed, at the discretion of the Subdivision Authority, but only if both proposed parcels (the fragment and the remainder) will have access to a developed County road and a suitable site for development.

To be a fragmentation, an area of land must be separated from the balance of the titled area by a natural barrier such as a river, a permanent naturally-occurring water body, a railroad, or a road; but not an undeveloped road on a Road Plan. A fragmenting feature may be a barrier to the crossing of cultivation equipment created by substantial topography, such as a ravine, gulley or watercourse, but not normally an intermittent watercourse or a seasonal water run or water or wetland feature; however, the determination that such a topographic barrier is a fragmenting feature for the purpose of subdivision shall be at the sole discretion of the Subdivision Authority.

2.13 The subdivision of country residential parcels from a quarter section allowed pursuant to Section 2.11 above without requiring an amendment to the Land Use Bylaw can be any combination of farmsteads and vacant parcels. A proposal for more than the number of country residential parcels on any one quarter section allowed pursuant to Section 2.11 above will be considered to be multi-lot country residential development.

2.14 Notwithstanding Section 2.11, if a quarter section has been divided into two halves within the County, only one country residential parcel may be subdivided from each half quarter section without requiring an amendment to the Land Use Bylaw. If a fragmented parcel has been subdivided from a quarter section, and if that fragmented parcel is in excess of 20 ha (50 ac) in size, only one country residential parcel may be subdivided, one from the fragment and one from the remainder of the quarter section, without requiring an amendment to the Land Use Bylaw. If a fragmented parcel has been subdivided from a quarter section, and if that fragmented parcel is between 8 ha (20 ac) and 20 ha (50 ac) in size, only two country residential parcels may be subdivided, neither of them from the fragmented parcel without requiring an amendment to the Land Use Bylaw.

2.15 Single lot country residential use parcels shall not be less than 0.4 ha (1 ac) in size and not more than 8 ha (20 ac) in size. However, the total area of all single lot country residential use parcels on a quarter section, including the area of any fragmented parcel which is used for country residential purposes, shall not exceed the number of hectares indicated in Section 2.11 above. The use of more land within one quarter section for country residential use shall be considered multi-lot country residential development, even if it is for only one lot, and will require amendment to the Land Use Bylaw before such development can be approved by the County.

A Public Hearing will be held on Tuesday, October 9, 2007 at 11:30 a.m. or as soon thereafter as can possibly be arranged, at the County Office in St. Paul.

Vote 2007: Town Council

Capjack hoping for comeback

CAPJACK, Bernice

Bernice Capjack served one term on town council and says she "enjoyed it immensely." Her greatest satisfaction came from being in on the planning for a new playground, skating rink and skateboard park, and she also served on the physician recruitment committee which was successful in bringing Dr. Oyebo to Elk Point. Capjack was part of the crew which hosted the first Seniors Week pancake breakfast, and another highlight of her years on council was the official opening of the Iron Horse Trail.

Capjack feels the greatest challenge facing the incoming town council will be preparing for growth, and says, "long term planning is essential." She is concerned with making the community as safe as possible for its residents.

sible for its residents.

"We need new businesses to keep people here, and to make Elk Point one of the best communities, a place to be proud of."

Capjack brings to the position good leadership skills and the ability to work with a team, and says she is "very community minded. I've been involved (in community groups and projects) for all 38 years I've lived here." One position Capjack retained after her council stint was that of Canada Day Committee chair, which this year was expanded to include the Elk Point Centennial celebrations.

"I'm not afraid of hard work, and no job is too big. I'm willing to learn, willing to listen and willing to work for the citizens of Elk Point."

More growth needed: Cousins

COUSINS, Dave

Dave Cousins says he decided to run for council because "it's tough to see other communities growing when Elk Point is in the middle of the oil industry and is not attracting new business. I want to help to work out a plan to help Elk Point grow. I'd like to see more families come to town."

Cousins moved to Elk Point in 1988, and feels the community "has been good to me and my family. We like it here, and plan to stay. In fact, we're building a new house in the new subdivision."

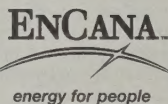

The first-time council candidate has been involved in the community throughout those years, serving on the executive of the Ag Society, Arena Operating Committee, Oilmen's Association and Golf Club, and has been part of numerous working groups.

In his job, Cousins says, "I have to make important decisions, and I like to think things through and weigh the options before making a decision."

Challenges facing the new council will include trying to foster new development and making long-term plans, Cousins says.

"We need more growth, more small businesses, more families. We need to find a way to attract young families, and to get the young people to step up and pitch in. We should try to pull the community together so it will operate effectively. People are going home past Elk Point, we need to find a way to attract them to make their home here, and to bring a new look to the town."

Cousins feels he "might have ideas that others don't" to enhance the community.

Alberta is at a crossroads

As a fellow Albertan, I am writing to you about the Alberta Royalty Review Panel recommendations. The Panel has proposed broad and sweeping changes to the economic foundation of our industry, and our province. I feel that I have a responsibility and an obligation to share with you what these changes would mean for EnCana and the potential impacts on every Albertan.

Let me first say that we at EnCana are open to changes to Alberta's royalties. However, if the Panel's recommendations are adopted in full, the royalty changes will negatively impact EnCana's future investments and operations in Alberta and will have a widespread impact on economic activity across the province. A number of our projects will simply not be viable. As a consequence, we would have no choice but to reduce our 2008 capital investment in Alberta by about $1 billion, or 30 to 40 percent of the $2.5 to $3 billion we had planned for Alberta.

That will mean slowing down our Alberta-based activity and moving investments to other areas in Canada and the U.S. There will be fewer wells drilled, completed, pipelined, operated and serviced. There will be fewer hotel bookings, vehicle purchases, landowner lease payments and restaurant meals in the areas where EnCana operates from the smallest towns to the biggest cities. More importantly and over the long term, well-paying, permanent jobs will not materialize across Alberta.

We don't want that to happen. As one of the largest producers of oil and gas in the province we have a vested interest in the prosperity of Alberta. We live here. We work here. We are Albertans. So we care deeply about the impacts the Royalty Panel recommendations will have on the Alberta economy and on the communities where we operate.

We believe a royalty system can be developed that achieves Alberta's objectives without so severely damaging the province's future. We want to work with the government to find a solution. One that works for everyone. One that strengthens Alberta's future.

I encourage you to be informed before you decide if the recommendations in the Alberta Royalty Review Panel Report are a good thing for Alberta. Your MLA is waiting to hear from you.

Fraess sticking up for little guy

FRAESS, Ron

Ron Fraess recently retired after 22 years with the Town of Elk Point as superintendent of public works, where he accumulated a vast knowledge of development and the town's infrastructure. He feels that "knowing the town inside and out," coupled with experience prior to coming to Elk Point on a water board and a landfill board, plus six years as the mayor of Chipman, would make him an asset to the new town council.

One of the largest priorities for the coming term will be to get the water treatment plant upgrade underway and completed, and Fraess hopes council "will build the plant that's needed, not what the town can get for the cheapest price. I feel strongly about this. Providing water for 1,500 people is a big responsibility, and we need personnel with adequate training."

Fraess wants the town "to get full value for the land development. They still don't have the utilities in up in the new subdivision, and it's been a whole year. It seems like nobody stays on top of it."

Fraess also feels "a lot of times, nobody at the council table is on the little guy's side, the side of the people who don't complain (about council decisions) but still have to pay for them. Someone has to stick up for the little guy, and I feel that hasn't happened enough."

A member of the Elks Lodge and the Royal Canadian Legion, Fraess was also involved in planning this year's Elk Point Centennial and Canada Day celebrations.

Elk Point Council

✓ VOTE 2007

GORMLEY, Mark

Mark Gormley joined the council race because "I want to try something new and different that will help the community." A volunteer firefighters, Gormley is also involved in other local activities, including setting up the new Centennial Playground, where "I really enjoyed meeting new people and working with the other parents."

Gormley sees "places

Gormley: lots to offer

where the town could improve, such as development along the highway. I think Elk Point could benefit on a large scale from that." He feels Elk Point has a lot to offer tourists, because of its location near lakes and campgrounds, and because "we have a river here we should capitalize on. We need to get people to stop in Elk Point, not just drive through."

Gormley admits he's not sure what challenges the new council will face, and that being part of the council would be "a big learning curve for the first while," but he does see a need "to stimulate the economy. If we have more businesses, we'll have more people moving here and more capital bringing in more taxes. It opens the doors, because more dollars could go for community development to benefit everyone from seniors to children."

Gormley spent many years in retail business, and has a good understanding of management, budgeting and money flow that he feels could be applied to council. "We need to treat the town as a business, and I know how a business is run."

A "people person," Gormley says he gets along well with others, is outgoing and likes a challenge. "I'd be excited to bring a new perspective to council."

Lions, Bengals still roaring loudly

They make it look easy, but after a lot of hard work and practice, the Bengals set a new record this week, scoring the highest number of points ever in a game on St. Paul turf, winning over Lac la Biche 67 to 20. Stephan John with a huge runback of almost 100 yards, scoring his first touchdown of the season. A touchdown for the lanky receiver "Dirty Harry" Harrison Maas and another for quarterback Mark

doug BASSETT

Review Sports

Proski, who also made good all of his field goal attempts. Rugged defenseman Wacy Durocher with some mighty punishing tackles and Jordan Mudryk doing an excellent job in the defensive backfield again this week, coming up with the ball after he recovered a fumble. Next week the Bengals have a bye.

Make it five and 0 for the senior team, the Lions, with another big win as well this past weekend, defeating Lac La Biche 27 to 12. The speedy sprinter Bryant Schnurer with a touchdown, Tyson Proski and Randy Merkel also with touchdowns. Schnurer, who was named MVP for the game, ran a total of 202 yds and was just half a yard short of a second TD.

A dirty job that requires a lot of concentration, because a player knows he's going to take some mean pounding after releasing the ball, long snapper Matt Boyko doing a super job at center. No glory, just mud, sweat and blood for troopers Cory Smereka and Derek Wruth, both battling in the trenches on the defense.

Diesel equipment operators need a fuel that delivers power without sacrificing efficiency and economy.

CO-OP EP3000 PREMIUM DIESEL FUEL has been developed to give long hours of heavy use while providing maximum power and reduced fuel consumption. EP3000 also helps reduce down time and guard against expensive repairs, adding extra savings to a well-rounded maintenance program. Overall, CO-OP EP3000 is the diesel fuel of choice for agricultural or commercial applications.

• HIGHER CETANE NUMBER / LOW API GRAVITY

CO-OP EP 3000 Diesel is formulated to give a higher cetane number than regular diesel. The higher the number, the shorter the time delay between fuel injection and combustion. This results in faster starts, a smoother running engine and increased power. As well, the fuel burns more completely - it doesn't go up in smoke. The lower the API gravity, the higher the BTU content. The higher the BTU content, the more power provided to run your diesel equipment.

Town council hopefuls offer range of experience

JASINSKY, Dennis
(Incumbent)

Dennis Jasinsky is seeking his fourth term on town council, and says his prime objective is "to try to convince council that we have to go beyond five years in planning. Full-blown 10-year plans should be built."

Another top priority for the coming term would be to expand the community's recycling system to include additional materials such as paper and cardboard. That service has been much missed since the business operating it at the time found the sale of the paper no longer covered the cost of shipping it.

Jasinsky has been on council for nine years, and says there are still "issues that started previous to my time, some as long as 15 years ago, that are now an issue again. The industrial park road would have cost $600,000 six years ago, and now it will cost over a million. We haven't saved anything by waiting."

Jasinsky's community involvement includes serving as chairman of the Friends of the Forts and being a member of the library board. During his years on council, he has "served on every committee but public works. I like the tourism committees, and think we need to stay involved with that aspect. There's a lot of potential there."

LESYK, Ron

Ron Lesyk has lived in Elk Point for 43 years, and is "now retired and ready to serve the people." He has accumulated experience in budgeting and finance, which he feels would be valuable assets to council.

Lesyk's past community involvement includes 15 years as a volunteer fireman and 12 years when he enjoyed coaching minor hockey.

The biggest challenge the new council faces will be to keep Elk Point "a safe, sustainable and progressive community. I'd like to see commercial growth. One of the biggest needs is for the town to grow commercially and residentially so that it isn't a tax burden for the ratepayers." Lesyk said he would also like to "find out what matters to the community, what the residents' issues are, and bring those issues to council so they could act on them."

Lesyk feels it is important to "give something back to the community after living here as long as I have. I'm not afraid to speak my mind. My dad was on town council, and I think this would be a continuation."

MILLAR, Dick

Dick Millar is a seven-year resident of Elk Point, and says he and his wife enjoy "this peaceful, safe and friendly community that made us welcome right from the get-go, and now would like to give something back to the town."

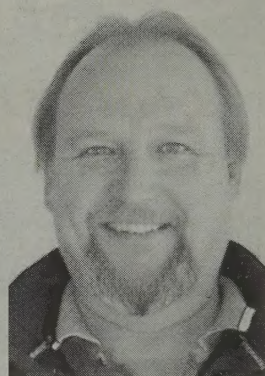

Millar has a strong background in business and economic development, with 20 years in banking, six with the Saskatchewan Economic Development Corporation, 16 years as owner of a small chain of retail stores and the past nine years as a business analyst with Community Futures St. Paul - Smoky Lake. He is self-employed as a mortgage broker.

Sustained economic growth, "both commercial and residential," is one of the most important issues facing the new council, Millar says. He would like to see a business retention and expansion program in place, to bring "new community vitality through increased jobs, income and wealth creation, broadening of the tax base and increasing economic and business opportunities. Seventy-five to 80 per cent of business growth comes from existing businesses, which provide many advantages for the community. New jobs mean new residents, then new homes." He also would fully support the economic development committee, which he feels is "doing an outstanding job."

Millar feels there is "interest in the community. Let's encourage and sustain it, and just get out and sell it to the rest of the country, including the tourism industry. We have so much to offer, and our recreation facilities are first class and presently under-utilized."

Modern, "people-friendly" highway signage is another important issue. Millar suggests signs could also "acknowledge our famous sons, like Mark Letestu and Sheldon Souray."

YAREMKEVICH, Dwayne
(Incumbent)

Dwayne Yaremkevich says the past three years on council have been "very educational and rewarding." Although he says his first year "was iffy, it took a while to figure everything out," he carried a full share of responsibilities on the various committees.

"It's been a successful three years for the town. I would like to continue to be part of the positive direction the town is going in."

Challenges facing the new council include not only providing for growth in both residential and industrial areas, but also dealing with the huge influx of Municipal Sustainability Initiative grant funding that was announced recently, Yaremkevich says.

NOTICE

COUNTY OF ST. PAUL NO. 19 Proposed Amendment to Bylaw No. 1486

Notice is hereby given that the Council of the County of St. Paul No. 19 is considering Bylaw No. 1499, which is a Bylaw to amend Land Use Bylaw No. 1486. The following changes are being proposed:

By deleting Subsections 7.14(1) through (6) in their entirety and replacing them with the following:

Single Lot Subdivisions for Country Residential Development (including Farmstead, Separations, Fragmented Parcels, and Manufactured Homes)

- (1) In the Agriculture (A) and Urban Expansion (UX) Districts, four (4) parcels for country residential use may be subdivided out of each quarter section provided the quarter section is a minimum of 60 ha (148 ac) in size and provided, further, that the total area of such parcels does not exceed 8 ha (20 ac). If the quarter section is less than 60 ha (148 ac) in size but more than 45 ha (111 ac) in size, the total area of such parcels may not exceed 6 ha (15 ac). If the quarter section is less than 45 ha (111 ac) in size but more than 30 ha (74 ac) in size, the total area of such parcels may not exceed 4 ha (10 ac). If the quarter section is less than 30 ha (74 ac) in size, the total area of such parcel may not exceed 2 ha (5 ac). Such country residential parcels may include any combination of farmsteads and vacant parcels, and may include one (1) fragmented parcel. However, if a quarter section has been subdivided into two (2) halves, only one (1) country residential parcel may be subdivided from each half.
- (2) If the quarter section in the A or UX District is less than 60 ha (148 ac) in size but more than 45 ha (111 ac) in size, a maximum of three (3) parcels for country residential use may be subdivided from that quarter section. If the quarter section in the A or UX District is less than 45 ha (111 ac) in size but more than 30 ha (74 ac) in size, a maximum of two (2) parcels for country residential use may be subdivided from that quarter section. If the quarter section in the A or UX District is less than 30 ha (74 ac) in size but more than 15 ha (37 ac) in size, a maximum of one (1) parcel for country residential use may be subdivided from that quarter section. If the quarter section is less than 15 ha (37 ac) in size, no single lot separation may be allowed.
- (3) The development of more than the number of country residential parcels in a quarter section indicated in subsections (1) and (2) above shall be considered to be multi-lot country residential development and shall not be allowed within the Agriculture (A) or Urban Expansion (UX) Districts. Rather, an appropriate amendment to this Bylaw shall be required, normally to a Country Residential District.
- (4) Deleted
- (5) A fragmented parcel, as defined in this bylaw, less than 8 ha (20 ac) in size, shall be considered a parcel for country residential use for the purposes of Subsection (1) above. Subdivision of fragmented parcels larger than 8 ha (20 ac) in area shall be considered to be agricultural parcels.
- (6) A country residential use parcel shall not be less than 0.4 ha (1 ac) in size and not more than 8 ha (20 ac) in size. However, the total area of all single lot country residential use parcels on a quarter section, including the area of any fragmented parcel which is used for country residential purposes, shall not exceed the number of hectares indicated in section 2.11 above. The use of more land within one quarter section for country residential use shall be considered multi-lot country residential development, even if it is for only one lot, and will require amendment to the Land Use Bylaw before such development can be approved by the County.

A Public Hearing will be held on Tuesday, October 9, 2007 at 10:30 a.m. or as soon thereafter as can possibly be arranged, at the County Office in St. Paul.

ATB Financial showed their appreciation to two of their corporate customers last Tuesday, when they delivered lunch to their businesses. "That must be allocated properly, or we won't have anything to show for it."

Another concern is that Elk Point "has taken a back seat in recycling, I think that will change. I've been to other communities to look at their recycling initiatives, and Paradise Hill, SK, has a beautiful area set up. We need something like that."

Along with three years of experience and being born and raised in Elk Point, Yaremkevich feels he offers the voters "commonsense knowledge. I make decisions based on that. You have to have your heart in your town, so you can make it a safer and growing community."

Three in a row – Bouchard acclaimed in Division 5 again

By CLARE GAUVREAU
Staff Writer

Acclaimed to a seat in Division 5 on County of St. Paul council for the third term in a row, Robert Bouchard is all smiles these days. He wrapped up harvest a couple of weeks ago and found out Sept. 17 on nomination day, that he wouldn't have to campaign for a seat at the council table again.

"It feels good. You never know until 12 o'clock. I had expected to see someone run."

Bouchard was first elected to county council in 1977 and served for the next 18 years. He didn't seek re-election in 1995 but his name was back on the ballot in 1998 when he defeated Leonce Langevin to win Division 5 again. That's the last year he had to campaign, winning by acclamation in 2001, 2004 and now in 2007.

He's been on council long enough to have seen a few changes in how the county does business. One of the key changes he said over the years has been a gradual shift around the council table from focusing on individual divisions to considering the county as a whole when making decisions. He said it's something those seeking election to council should keep in mind on the campaign trail.

"Your division is a small part of what happens in the county and so you have to have a broader vision than simply your own division. There has to be a broader focus on needs of the entire municipality," Bouchard said. "It has changed an awful lot and it needed to change."

For those out on the campaign trail, Bouchard has this advice: "First and foremost, be honest with the people; honest with your intentions."

Bouchard believes, on the whole, the municipality is in good standing. He'd like to see the mill rate lower but he's confident the Municipal Sustainability Initiative announced in mid September, which will see the county receive over $27 million in new money over the next 10 years, will take some pressure of the mill rate.

"I'm pleased with the funding formula. It is not strictly based on population but takes into consideration miles of road. It's all new money, it's great," he said.

"Our mill rate is very high provincially and it will make us more competitive with neighboring municipalities." Another plus for the county and its residents, according to Bouchard, is its equipment.

"We're miles ahead with our equipment. We had to be innovative and had to purchase equipment to do our work," he said. "It's a very big strength for the county. It's the ratepayers that own it and it's a benefit to the ratepayers."

Bouchard fully expects development issues to be one of the main challenges facing the next council.

"Planning issues and some of the development that is expected to happen. We have a municipality that doesn't have a lot of development yet."

Lakeshore residential subdivision development is already creating concern in the county. On one hand, said Bouchard, are the landowners who are finally seeing some property value in otherwise marginal land they've owned for years.

"Those landowners have been there a long time and they should have some rights to do things with their property."

On the other hand, said Bouchard, "I see people who are fairly well off, well educated and buying property and developing it." Increasingly, these two groups have different ideas about what types of development should happen, he said.

With 23 years holding down the county's top job as reeve, Bouchard said it will be up to his fellow councilors whether or not he'll sit at the head of the table again.

October is Library Month in Canada

By THE CANADIAN LIBRARY ASSOCIATION

October is Canadian Library Month, a chance for Canadians to discover the worlds of fun and knowledge at their fingertips through libraries.

"This year's theme of 'Libraries: the world at your fingertips' is an invitation to all Canadians to enter the magical universe of imagination, reading and learning, whether for leisure, work, school or research. We create bridges that span the globe regardless of format ... websites, e-resources, audio, video, books, newspapers and magazines," says Canadian Library Association (CLA) president, Dr. Alvin Schneider.

Libraries will use the month to illustrate the many programs and services that libraries use to help Canadians get access to the information they need and to advance reading and Canadian culture. All types of libraries and library services will be participating.

More than just books, public libraries are the heart and soul of their communities, providing high-speed access to the Internet and helping users learn how to find quality sites, in addition to a good read. They are among the few public spaces still open to all, regardless of age, gender, race, social status, economic circumstances, occupation, sexual orientation or language. School libraries play a pivotal role in students' learning. Research shows there is a direct link between having trained school library staff with solid collections, and students achieving academic success.

Libraries at Canada's academic institutions - libraries and colleges - are critical to the creation of new knowledge as well as helping students access the knowledge of the present and past. Over 1,100 special libraries across Canada, in private businesses, government agencies and departments, and not-for-profit organizations, help their companies, departments or agencies be more productive and contribute to making better decisions across all sectors of the economy.

The library community is a major sector of the Canadian economy. Public libraries alone spend $1 billion a year providing services and collections to the people of Canada. University and college libraries spend in excess of $200 million annually, solely on their collections of books, electronic journals and other materials. Overall, there are 57,000 library workers in Canada serving Canadians in every walk of life through a network of 22,000 locations all across the country.

Canadian Library Month is organized by a pan-Canadian volunteer committee supported by the CLA.

Elk Point Elementary goes all out for Terry Fox Run

Elk Point Elementary School students turned out in full force for last Friday's Terry Fox Run. The run started and ended north of the outdoor skating rink, and followed a route going south past the tennis course, up a tree-lined alley west of 52 Street, and followed another very scenic alley all the way around Circle Drive. Some made the trip as many as three or four times before returning to the starting point to enjoy a juice break before returning to class. It was a perfect afternoon for an outing and everyone enjoyed the exercise while raising money for cancer research. Watch for results of the run in an upcoming issue.
